With chapters written by experts in their field, this volume advances the understanding of theory and successful practice of marketing and promoting environmental sustainability. The book includes topics such corporate advertising strategy related to sustainability, corporate social responsibility advertising, greenwashing, advertising related to values, persuasion and persuasion knowledge in sustainability marketing, social media and sustainability, and advertising and public policy.

“A captivating study ... The authors’ lens of analysis equips scholars, marketing professionals and policy makers with useful background information as well as detailed case knowledge to better understand why consumers feel, think, and behave the way they do when sustainability is at a stake.”

—Ulrich R. Orth, Christian-Albrechts-Universitat, Germany
(Editor, International Journal of Wine Business Research)

“The first comprehensive volume to provide substantial contribution to the literature on the issue of sustainability, and it offers a comprehensive scope from theoretical and conceptual frameworks to applications.”

—Chung-Hyun Kim, Dean, School of Communication,
Sogang University, South Korea

“This book provides great insight into the values and motivations that spur people to environmental consumer action. It is a must-read for any company, government or NGO that is serious about effecting change in the realm of sustainability.”

—Jan D. Stensland, Inside Matters, (sustainable building consultant and educator), Berkeley, California
